Supplemental Figure

Figure S1. Phototransduction and the retinoid (visual) cycle. Both processes work in concert. Although different methodologies and study strategies for both processes have led to some intellectual segregation, in reality both systems are intertwined and co-regulated. For details, see Figures 1 (phototransduction) and 6 (the visual cycle).